NOTES

Marginal annotations by a different humanistic hand either provide some historical or context-related explanations on the content of the poems, or give biographical information on the characters mentioned; or else paraphrase some lines, or even provide some parallel passages from Latin or vernacular authors (including Dante). The most annotated texts are Triumphus Amoris I, Amoris III, and Amoris IV.

After fol. 103, a fol. (with Triumphus Fame III.9-104) is missing. It must have been lost before the foliation was added to the ms., because no interruption in the numeration of the fols. occurs.
