Other contents:

The ms. is Bartolomeo Sacchella's autograph Zibaldone, which collects heterogeneous material over several decades, particularly during the 1450s and 1460s. The core is made up of Sacchella's own fifty-nine poems, mostly frottole of moralizing content, written in a Lombard dialect. In addition to Petrarch's poems and his poems, there is a series of Latin and vernacular texts. Sacchella also lists letters, proverbs, and excerpts from works by Latin authors (Juvenal, Seneca, Valerius Maximus) and religious authorities, such as Ambrose, Pope Gregory I, and Augustine.

SacchiniNOTES

With the exception of Triumphus Amoris I (which only recalls the date of Petrarch's enamourment with Laura) and Amoris III, all the capitoli in the Triumphs are preceded by a Latin prose summary by Sacchella. These brief prose texts explain the content of each capitolo and also provide either the first lines of following capitoli or some information regarding the order of the Triumphs. For instance, as regards Triumphus Mortis Ia (fol. 109v), the annotator reflects on its position within the work, arguing that it has been wrongly placed in other mss. at the beginning of the Triumphus Mortis, whereas it should, for reasons of internal cohesion, be placed between Mortis I and II. Occasionally, some variant readings are placed in the margins next to the compositions from the RVF and the Triumphs.
