NOTES

According to Rizzardi (2004, XIII), this is one of the most ancient copies of Pseudo-Filelfo's commentary.

Lines and commentary on Triumphus Amoris I.136-141 are placed between lines and commentary on Triumphus Amoris II, 20-21.

Fol. 1r has an architectural frame with white vine-stem decoration; at the bottom section of the fol. are two cupids and a coat of arms of the Visconti family. Initials in gold for the introductory paragraph and the prologue of [Pseudo-Filelfo's] commentary (fol. 1r), Triumphus Amoris III (fol. 25r), Mortis Ia (fol. 57v), Mortis II (fol. 60r), and Fame Ia (fol. 90r).

At fol. 126v two signatures appear: the first one might indicate the name of the copyist 'nicolo da palaiolo fo adi p[rim]o'; the second signature is copied twice: 'Antonio dala sanb. sandra d.' and 'antonio dala sanbuchci [sic]', and presumably is a note of possession.
