NOTES

For most of the RVF poems and the capitoli of the Triumph, concise (1-10 lines) marginal annotations in Latin in cursive humanistic script provide either summaries of the texts' content, or information about when and why they were composed, or both. Further marginal annotations also refer to the names of historical and mythological figures mentioned in the capitoli of the Triumph; some maniculae.

For some RVF poems (e.g., fols. 12v-13r), a few marginal annotations by another later sixteenth-century hand refer to the names of historical and mythological figures mentioned by Petrarch.

Fol. 85 is missing. According to the index of the first lines of the Triumph, at the end of the ms. there should have been other 10 fols. with Triumphus Fame III.49-120, Temporis and Eternitatis, the certificate of Petrarch's coronation, and the poet's epitaph. These ten fols. are missing.
