NOTES

There are occasional marginal annotations next to RVF poems mainly reporting historical and mythological names or, more rarely, variant readings of some passages (e.g. fol. 125v).

Orlandi's canzone summarizes the content of the Triumphi. In the second stanza Orlandi states that he will illustrate the five subjects of Petrarch's work ('ti cantero lisuo [sic] cinq[ue] subiecti'). The text of the canzone makes precise references to Petrarch's work, with a particular focus on the mythological figures (such as Jupiter Mars, Proserpine) mentioned in the Triumphi.

RVF 231 is missing: at fol. 142v the copyist writes in a marginal note 'Qui mancha uno sonetto chi cominza Io mi uiuo. ho in fine a c[ar]t[a] 198'. At fols. 96v and 114r, RVF 114 and 138 were both covered by another layer of paper and were later rewritten by another hand, who tried to imitate the original one.

At fol. 5r is a coat of arms of the Venetian Giovanni Maranova, who – according to CPVe, 2 – presumably commissioned this ms. Decorated initials with a floral design for the first line of Triumphus Amoris I (which extends to the left margin of fol.) and RVF 1. Initial of every poem has schematic floral decorations; some maniculae.
